WINNING THROUGH DIVERSITY

A company is only as good as the people who work there.
How do you effectively manage these resources when each person is so different?

In the work environment, you are dealing not only with differences in race, gender and culture, you are also addressing issues that include communication styles, age, education, values and so much more! Learn how to see opportunities, strengths and potential where today you may only see differences. Connect the dots to see how your actions toward others either hurt or help the organization fulfill its mission and vision. Through interactive exercises, you will see how your company can gain the competitive edge by creating an environment that allows each person to reach their full potential.

Featured Speaker Vicki Gallon-Clark Training Specialist, Employers Association of the NorthEast (EANE)

Vicki Gallon-Clark has over 20 years of experience in Human Resources. She specializes in the areas of training, career planning and development and recruiting/staffing. Ms. Gallon-Clark has worked with diverse industries including: Financial Services, Healthcare, Government, and Human Services, as well as other private and non-profit organizations. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree and has received certifications in Human Resources Management and the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator. Ms. Gallon-Clark currently is the Program Director at the Blue Hills Civic Association. Founded in 1913, the Employers Association of the North-East has been in continuous operation serving employers throughout the northeast. Currently membership is over 900 organizations, including manufacturers, banks, hospitals, colleges, insurance companies, health care, retail, and many other types of employers.
